

Intro-Entertainment Industry ~ Resumes

Basics for All Resumes

- Don't lie
- Don't go crazy with unusual fonts—the cleaner looking the better
- Keep it to one page (except for PR resume and —maybe)
- If you are multi-talented, create a different resume for each market (e.g. tech theatre and acting)

- Nothing like academic or business resumes
- List your school and community credits proudly until you have enough professional experience
- Single spaced
- Include: credits (shows/films you've done, who directed them, where, and for whom), education, skills, union affiliations
- Actors: generally accepted practice to include height, weight, hair color, color of eyes
- Actors: do not include age range
- Do NOT list credits chronologically—list the best ones first
- Have a different resume for TV/Film and for live Theatre (if you do both)
- Don't list commercials—can say "Commercial list available upon request" (and have that available on a separate sheet if they ask for it)

- Singers: list soprano, alto, baritone, tenor, etc. (can list vocal range, but I would not suggest it)
- Use columns (show, character, director, where)
- Once you have amassed a lot of credits, just include the best (and you can say “Representative Credits” but that’s not necessary)

Special Skills

- Be strategic
- Don’t include instruments you played a long time ago and no longer own
- Dialects—say “very proficient with dialects” or “great ear for dialects” rather than listing specific ones (don’t list this unless you are very good)
- Sports—don’t list them unless you’re really good
- Singing—if you sing in your car or karaoke and that’s it, leave it off

- Dance—great if you have ballroom experience (list what kind); other types of dance, list how many years
- Fluency in foreign languages—only if you are a native speaker
- Vehicle licenses (especially if you drive a tractor or semi)

Things NOT to Put on a Performance Resume

- Dates
- Your home phone number or address (cell phone and email only and then replace with agent info when you get one)
- Tech or directing credits should be on a different resume
- Statement of purpose (only for corporate resumes)
- Spiritual beliefs—have no place on a business document

EXPERIENCE

ResNet Intern, Vanderbilt ITS: Nashville, TN — Summer 2005

Created an inventory system using a database backend to manage many ITS assets. Configured wireless access points for optimal coverage.

Testing Engineer, Adtran Corp: Huntsville, AL — Summer 2004

Tested and revised the web interface on Adtran's NetVanta series of routers. Designed and built network testbeds and created tests to simulate network conditions. Created an automated testing system that automatically discovered flaws in the interface and allowed code revisions to ship much sooner.

Computer Repair Technician, self-employed: Huntsville, AL — Summer 2003

Fixed a wide array of computer problems for clients. Performed troubleshooting on virus-infected computers. Designed and implemented home networks.

Technical Support, Vanderbilt ITS: Nashville, TN — 2002-2006

Helped students set up computers in their rooms and performed general computer troubleshooting. Made sure that new students did not have difficulty connecting to the network.
